

O'TOOLE HERE.

The Slayer of Edward Fennell Now Occupies a Cell.

Exposure of the Post-Dispatch Brings About This Result.

A WARRANT FOR MURDER ISSUED AGAINST THE PRISONER.

Capt. Joyce Took Hold of the Case and His Special Officers Effect O'Toole's Capture — Arrested on a Farm of a Relative Near Millwood, Mo. — The Prisoner Gives His Version of the Killing of Fennell.

A tardy and slumbering justice, lashed into activity by the Post-DISPATCH, yesterday placed his hand upon the shoulder of Joseph O'Toole and landed him behind prison bars, where he will be held to answer the charge of committing an unprovoked murder.

The crime for which O'Toole was wanted was committed on the night of Sunday, Sept. 17, last, when he stabbed and fatally wounded Edward Fennell outside the latter's residence 142 North Fourteenth street. Fennell was sitting in front of his house when O'Toole passed and without a word, slapped him in the face. Fennell jumped to his feet to avenge the insult, and as he did so O'Toole plunged the large blade of a case knife into his side, inflicting injuries from which he died.

O'Toole died at the City Hospital six days later. O'Toole fled and escaped arrest until yesterday, when he was captured on the farm a distant relative two miles west of Millwood, Mo., and held in custody.

Escaping O'Toole was brought back to the city and placed in a cell in the Third District Police Station. The coroner's inquest upon his victim was placed before Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Esten, who read it over and issued a warrant charging him with murder in the second degree. This will be served upon him during the course of the day, after which he will be transferred to the City Jail.

O'TOOLE'S CAPTURE.

O'Toole's capture was effected by Special Officers Dewar and Burke of the Third District, who the day before had received a tip as to the whereabouts of their man. They learned that he was working upon the farm of a distant relative of his, his name being Donnelly, near Millwood.

THE POST-DISPATCH'S EXPOSURE.

The successful termination of the case makes some amends for the apparent lethargy of the police in their initial pursuit of the fugitive, and can be directly traced to the efforts of the Post-DISPATCH in making public their inactivity. O'Toole was an unscrupulous and friendless member of the police force who it was shown by the sworn testimony of witnesses, given before the coroner, had attempted to shield him by testifying that he was witness to the tragedy to stay away from the inquest.

It was suspected that the murderer had left the city for a time, but it was determined that if anybody was endeavoring to protect O'Toole from arrest he should not succeed.

Special officers detailed to the Post-DISPATCH, the Captain of the 12th and after some very clever detective work, O'Toole was located and arrested.

While serving his sentence in the Third District Prison this morning, O'Toole treated his present position with perfect indifference. He had no regret that his hand had been taken from him, and his principal anxiety was to know if his relatives had not sent him something better than ordinary prison fare to eat. He was in the habit of having his meals sent to him by the Darington Lumber Co. He determined that if anybody was endeavoring to protect O'Toole from arrest he should not succeed.

thought they were honest. I paid no attention to them until they told me, 'I know Burke and I recognized him when he came up.' The other officer I did not know.

During the time Capt. Joyce kept expressing a wish that his relatives would come and bring him something to eat. He stayed repeatedly and appeared in every way publicly unconcerned about his ultimate fate.

Capt. Joyce is naturally very much elated over his capture. He says after this right about him, he said, "and now I've got him. That is the main point. I am willing to confess that the Post-DISPATCH is helping him in this. He is not a bad man, but I hope he'll get what he deserves, for the killing of Fennell was certainly his bloodshed. My two special officers made a splendid capture and deserve credit for it."

Comptroller Sturgeon's Report on City Scales—City Hall Notes.

City Comptroller Sturgeon has prepared a statement for the Mayor showing the receipts, expenses and losses to the city for the maintenance of the scales at the various markets. The markets at some of the scales have been abolished, yet the scales still remain.

The Comptroller's statement is as follows:

	Per Cent	Expenses	Loss
South St. Louis Scales	227.40	$1,251.59	$1,024.18
North Loveless Scales	459.60	1,119.48	658.38
North Loveless Scales	33.20	1,138.55	1,105.35
South Scales and Scales	76.60	1,101.00	1,024.40
Thorne Scales	50.00	268.44	208.44
South Scales and Scales	985.05	1,278.85	292.90
Total	$1,832.75	$1,447.86	$84.15

This statement is for the year from Nov. 1, 1892 to Nov. 1, 1893 and as will be seen show that the city paid during that time $4,315.11 in salaries and for repairs.

Mayor Walbridge will submit the statement to the Municipal Assembly for consideration.

Comptroller Sturgeon, at whose suggestion this is done, says that he can see no use for the scales where there is no market. With the exception of the "Thorne" scales at the Insane Asylum, which cost $285.44 for maintenance last year, the others cost the city between $1,100 and $1,800 each, and their removal would be a loss of $1,000 to the city.

The point which will be brought before the Assembly is that the scales are maintained solely to give employment to a few persons and not for the benefit of the public at large.

Mayor Walbridge on Revolver Permits.

Mayor Walbridge said in connection with revoking all permits here issued to carry concealed weapons, that he found it was impossible to discriminate between citizens who were entitled to a permit and those who were not.

The Mayor indignantly denied the insinuation made by some hangers-on at the City Hall that the assassination of Mayor Harlan in Chicago he thought it best to disarm all cranks and the only way to reach that end.

He also stated that it was his intention to issue a single permit in the future to any one.

THE POST-DISPATCH appears once more as a public benefactor in introducing pennies.

COLLECTOR SPECK will have nine salaries of more than $1,000 to appoint, and he is without a body-guard.

HELP to introduce pennies into circulation by buying the POST-DISPATCH for 2 cents and keep the change when you offer a nickel.

Pennies are a great public convenience. The POST-DISPATCH proposes to bring them to St. Louis and keep them in circulation.

You can buy the POST-DISPATCH for 2 cents. Don't take your paper of a boy who will not make change when you offer a nickel.

No more pop permits go out from the City Hall. The citizen who wants his arsenal with him must be certain that he is in peril.

The absence of pop permits will not necessarily remind the hip pocket to desist. Peaceful citizens have long utilized it as a tobacco pocket.

The American merchant sailors who have gone into the war service of Brazil will soon return out of Mr. Mello, now that so much of his ammunition has exploded.

The disarmament of citizens carrying permitted pop would have a tendency to make things a little dull at the Morgue, but we don't need continuous excitement.

From his cold, hard seat on the ice-wagon, ex-President Harrison will to-day watch the election in Ohio. Should it prove a McKinley boom he will know what to do.

The announcement that the financial question was not settled by the repeal of the Sherman law ought not to surprise anyone. Repeal was only the first step toward a settlement.

The World's Fair visitors should have stayed over to witness the refined exhibition in the Chicago Board of Aldermen during the choice of a successor to the murdered Mayor.

The appointment of Judge Speck insures sound administration of the Collector's office. The better element in all parties will acquiesce in the President's decision and approve his choice.

That good man, Col. Edward Butler, has been declared not guilty of the charges brought against him by his wicked enemies. He is still the best as well as the most powerful man in St. Louis.

CHAMP CLARK says there is no money in politics for an honest man. Official salaries are certainly large enough for any man who knows anything of ordinary economy. Perhaps Mr. Clark means that an honest man cannot "get there."

Tickets for the concert! The concert is for the benefit of the poor. The bobby of your block has them, and you'll not have to wake him to get one. The amount is so very small that you'll never miss it, and it will go to swell a large loan to the Lord.

Mr. BAYARD's address at the Sheffield banquet was not necessary to show that peace between the United Kingdom and United States is to be lasting. Are we burning up our trousers and chasing bad bags and raising Astors?

Vanilla Lemon Orange Rose, and deliciously as people will think that Secretary of the Treasury service a woman may another woman's husband. There ought to be women enough of good morals in this country to do Uncle Samuel's work.

In considering ex-President Harrison's claims for a renomination his party will be ungrateful if it should fail to recognize his great work of putting the railway mail service under civil service rules after removing nearly all the Democrats. The President who provided not for his own crowd is worse than a mugwump.

WITH Sherman and Foraker committed to him, Mr. McKinley can reasonably hope for the presidential nomination should he be re-elected to-day. And if he is right in the belief that the American people are fools, a belief implied in all his speeches, he may just as reasonably expect a four-year term in the White House.

It is hardly credible that Thomas Brackett Reed appeared in Ohio as a McKinley speaker and then sought to knock the prop from under William by seducing certain Ohio Republican workers to the promotion of his own presidential boom.

Thomas B. is somewhat unscrupulous, but would he be so treacherous to a fellow member of the G. O. P.?

It seems to be just as well that Col. J. Hampton Hoge of Virginia should be held back. A newly appointed official likely to carry him into a foreign country a complete American jag should be restrained. It seems hard that a successful office-seeker should not fully celebrate his luck, but we must have something of dignity in our consular service.

YOUR FRIEND THE PENNY.

A penny circulation, which means pennies in everybody's pocket, is one of the great needs of St. Louis.

Of all the large cities in the country St. Louis is the only one in which the purchaser must buy at least a nickel's worth or not buy at all. In all other large cities pennies are abundant, and facilitate the smaller transactions and trades, many of which are made possible by this trifling convenience.

The penny is the economical coin. If one does not care to buy 5 cents' worth of peanuts, oranges, pears or candy, he can with his copper get 2 or 3 cents' worth. It enables him to indulge in many small pleasures which, without it he would never enjoy. Besides, its presence in the circulation tends to make possible the sale of many articles to people who will not take a nickel's worth.

Business men have every reason to desire its introduction, especially those whose trade is mostly with people of limited means. It promotes this class of trade by inviting many purchases of trifling articles which otherwise would not be bought so often or, in the aggregate, in such quantities.

In a larger way the penny is an advertisement. It is a mark of a metropolis. A St. Louisian will meet with the coin in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati and other cities of metropolitan character. In his own town he finds in trade no measure less than the 5-cent nickel. This contrast strikes him forcefully and he recognizes the non-use of the penny as the sign of a village civilization, the mark of a Western country town. The quarter used to be the humblest coin in the frontier mining towns, but with the introduction of order and a settled life, smaller denominations came into use. The tendency is always towards the coin of smallest value, and when this is arrested it looks like an arrest of growth itself.

The Post-DISPATCH has undertaken to introduce the penny and promote its universal use by the citizens of St. Louis. With the co-operation and assistance of the business men the penny will soon double the number of newspaper readers in St. Louis and build up a penny trade of great benefit to the people and the commerce of the city.

HONEST WEEKS.

It is a common thing for a man who has been trusted implicitly for many years to suddenly flush out upon the world as an extraordinary scoundrel, but embezzler Francis H. Weeks, who has just been brought back from the balmy atmosphere of Central America so near the opening of what promises to be a severe winter, has so far outdone even these extraordinary scoundrels that they may all take off their hats to him and ask themselves why they did not work their own opportunities better and really gain the confidence of men, women, children and babies, as this remarkable Mr. Weeks succeeded in doing.

How contemptible as a financier must appear the man who has squandered only $200,000 or $500,000 of the money intrusted to him by his confiding fellow beings, even though it may happen to be the property of widows and orphans, when he stands up to be photographed alongside a man of Weeks' capacity!

To square Mr. Weeks with the estates and persons whose money he handled would require $1,368,741.60. Had he remained a little longer he would have been enabled to make the 60 cents a round dollar, but a still, small voice in the hour just preceding his departure may have whispered to him that going off with that 40 cents would look like hogging, which is always unbecoming in a liberal embezzler.

It takes only a few such men as Weeks, properly distributed over the country just before a great silver discussion is coming on, to start a panic that may assume proportions which may be extremely useful to the party that happens to be out of power.

the capital that these Weeks got away with serving as so much political capital, as it were, for the outs, whose far-seeing leaders have been waiting to catch on to this calamitous condition as a fulfillment of their sanguine and repeated prophecies.

Nothing, however, seems more natural than that Mr. Weeks should have inspired confidence. A lawyer in high standing, a member of every considerable club and various associations, as well as a figure among the church people, it seemed quite impossible to suspect him. It would not have done to watch such a man, even had a cynic marked his speculative ventures and babbled of serious possibilities.

Some system of insurance could be devised by which property intrusted to men of established reputations such as Weeks acquired could be made secure, it would help matters very much. Somebody would then know something of what he was doing before he had blown everything in.

The operations of men of the Weeks order may well lead to especially caution being used in intrusting money or estates to men whose honesty appears to be generally acknowledged to admit of questioning.

It appears that Senator Hill's opposition is not the only stumbling block to the confirmation of the Hornblower appointment. Justice Field, it is said, opposes the nomination because of Mr. Hornblower's alleged services to corporations. This, however, cannot be held a serious objection.

Every lawyer who has demonstrated his ability to hold such a position has not done so without more or less corporation practice. This is now the "big end" of a lawyer's business. If he cannot command such business it is a sign that his ability is not first rate and that his professional brethren have little or no confidence in him. All that can be required of him is to hold such a position has not done so without more or less corporation practice.

A Hard Unpleasant Fact.

From the Philadelphia Times. The man in the White House would have, if that place, the first or the second, an immense number of the American who had not supposed that he had more elevated ideas than the average politician of me. The World itself, in fact, submitted a suggestive query: "What would have resulted had the Chicago platform for a reorganization of the diplomatic service on the Van Alen Roosevelt?" Just so! No candidate for the presidency indulged in more pretensions upon this whole country than Mr. Roosevelt, thereby rendering him more guilty than the demented wretch.

SHE WAS MAD.

So Pretty Dolly Dashman Went and Got Wedded.

And Now She Wants Recorder Hobbs to Annul the Marriage.

WHICH HE CAN'T, AND DOLLY IS METAPHORICALLY IN A PICKLE.

The Wedded William Peiffer Because She Had a Row With Her Brother—After Wedding William She Refuses to Live With Him—Blames It All on the Brother.

Ed Dashman, a clerk in the employ of D. Crawford & Co., living at 1503 Franklin Avenue, called at the Recorder's office this morning and wanted the marriage of his sister, Dolly Dashman, which occurred yesterday to William Peiffer of 119 North Fifteenth street, annulled. Dashman, who is a young man about 22 years of age, insisted that something had to be done, he claimed that his sister was only 17 years of age, and should never have been Peiffer's wife. Dashman was accompanied to the Recorder's office by Mrs. Peiffer, who stood around and smiled while he insisted that something should be done.

TOOK LATE.

"There can be nothing done now," said the clerk. "It is too late. She is his wife. They have been married."

"What did you let them get a license for?" angrily demanded the brother.

"Well, she told me she was 18 and gave me the date of her birth; and he swore he was 21, that's why. Don't you look?" replied the clerk, and then turning to the young woman who stood leaning on his desk, the clerk continued, " Didn't you swear you were 18 years old?"

"Yes, sir, I did. But I told a story," replied the bride.

"What did you marry him for, just for fun?" asked the clerk.

"No, sir. Me and my brother had a row, and I thought I'd get married."

"Well, did you love him?" asked the dispenser of marriage licenses.

"No, sir. I didn't love him," was the answer, with child-like simplicity, and the clerk threw both hands up in the air and gave a gasp as though he wanted to say something real foreboding.

The astonishment on the clerk's face in no way disconcerted the girl, who said to her brother: "It's all your fault, anyway. If you hadn't made me mad I wouldn't have married him."

"Well, you shall never live with him anyway," returned the brother, as he pulled the marriage certificate from her hands and started to crumple it into a ball.

"Oh, Eddie, don't do that. It won't help matters any by doing that," said the bride placing her hands on her brother's and big tears in her eyes.

"You will never live with him, you can bet on that," replied the big brother vehemently, as he placed the certificate that made a married woman in his pocket and closed it.

"All right, Ed; if you don't want me to live with him, I won't," was the only response.

After the pair had gone outside the office he brother related the story to a Post-District reporter.

"I want to get married," said he. "What did you want to get married for?"

"Because you made me mad," interjected Dolly, as she turned a pouting face toward her brother.

"She has only known this fellow Peiffer three weeks."

"You think Eddie," said the bride, correcting him.

WOULD NOT LIVE WITH HIM.

"She got mad at me and went off and got married. She is only 17 years old and doesn't love this fellow at all. Why, she wouldn't live with him and refused to go anywhere with him, and came home last night right after they were married. She hasn't lived with him a minute, and I think there ought to be some way of having this affair annulled."

"Well, I ain't going to live with him, Ed. I'm going home," said the little bride.

"Yes, you bet you are going home and going to stay there," answered the brother.

"Where you husband now, Mrs. Peiffer?" asked the reporter.

The bride blushed and said: "I don't know. He is a gas-fitter. When I refused to go with him last night, he got mad."

"What do you think he is doing?" asked the reporter.

"I don't know. His father is a dressmaker, and he is at 119 North Fifteenth street. It's only a little way from our house."

"Well, don't you love him? Don't you think anything of him at all?"

"No, sir. I have married him for Eddie and myself had a quarrel and I haven't anybody else to live with. So said, 'Well, I'll just get married.' I asked him to do it, and I said I would. It was awful naughty to do it, I know, and I wish I hadn't done it. Eddie, I have to do all this for you, but I shall not live with him."

Peiffer's statement.

Young Peiffer, when seen at his mother's, 119 North Fifteenth street, refused to talk. He, however, said that he had only proposed the marriage and not him. Further, that this young man, who is quite a good looking young man, refused to talk. His brother, however, stated that she had filed her objections to the marriage on two grounds, one was that she was a son and will accept no reduction.

She was over here this morning to see me and left saying that no matter what her brother said or did she was going to come back.

The bridegroom, after listening to what his mother had to say, said: "I am not going to say anything now, but I will fight any attempt to annul the marriage, and can say that I am the best of friends. She used to come to my house for breakfast sometimes and went to see Will."

MRS. SILVA'S PROPERTY.

The Rainwater-Bradford Company Will Release It From Attachment.

R. Delano, attorney for Mrs. Silva, was seen this morning and asked if he intended to institute proceedings to recover the personal property of Mrs. Silva which had been attached by the Sheriff along with her husband's property. The Sheriff's sale has been announced for Nov. 10, and the time necessary to institute replevin or other proceedings for the recovery of the property is therefore very limited.

In explanation Mr. Delano stated that he was satisfied that Messrs. Rainwater and Bradford had no intention to include Mrs. Silva's property in the attachment on her husband's effects, and that they would not proceed with the sale unless some other representation was made to them. For this reason no proceedings had as yet been commenced. Mrs. Silva had, however, for some time now been in the office of Rainwater & Bradford's attorney, reserving the right to either replevin her property or file a sworn statement of the same with the court.

In addition Mr. Delano said that Maj. Rainwater had notified him that Attorney Overall, who had been engaged to take steps to release Mrs. Silva's property, and that his client was waiting a telegram confirming this disposition of the matter from Attorney Overall, who is at present in Jefferson City.

NO MORE PERMITS.

Mayor Walbridge's New Policy Concerning the Carrying of Weapons.

The following notice was posted conspicuously this morning in the ante-room to the Mayor's office:

No permit for carrying weapons issued by this office.

Below this is the following:

Sec. 353 of the State laws, Revised Statutes 1889 is sufficient for any good citizen, giving him the right to carry a weapon if he has been threatened with death or harm or has good reason to carry the same in the necessary defense of his property or person or house.

This means that the Mayor has concluded to issue no more permits to carry concealed weapons. He has gone even further, as he has also issued an order revoking all permits for that purpose heretofore given. This order was sent in a communication to Chief of Police Harrigan with instructions to strictly enforce the law.

THE RUSSIAN SQUADRON.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The Journal to-day says that the Russian squadron will remain at Piraeus until Nov. 15, when it will go to Smyrna and the Dardanelles. Upon arriving at the Dardanelles, the crew will be sent to the Sultan's yacht and go to Constantinople. It is also asserted that two iron-clads will leave Piraeus to-morrow to reinforce the Russian fleet.

Other persons carrying them if arrested must plead justification under the above-mentioned section of the State law or be fined.

Chief of Police Harrigan said to-day: "It is a good thing and ought to have been done." The order to the Captains will be to the effect that the law of the land gives the right to him to carry weapons to defend himself and the rest of the crew.

The Captains' orders to the Captains will be to the effect that the law of the land gives the right to do so, but the crew must be allowed to make a speech at the palace following the Sultan's speech.
